Woodward & Lothrop IN THE SOCIAL WORLD

New York-WASHINGTON-Paris

Friday is Our Remnant Dav

T is a rigid rule of this store to close out at the end of each week all the odds and ends, short lengths, broken sizes, and assortments, small lots and the like which may have collected during the current week. In this wayremnants do not remain long enough to become old and undesirable. The remnants advertised below are especially strong and worthy of attention, and careful shopping will be rewarded to-day by appreciable savings.

Civil Engineer Rousseau is one of the youngest officers of the navy. His recent promotion from the rank of lieutenant to that of rear admiral by reason of his ap-pointment to succeed Civil Engineer Morof Yards and Docks, attracted to him the attention of the whole country. Such an CHARLES G. DODD, son of Lieut. Col. G. A advancement has been extremely rare in the navy, although the army has become used to it during the administration of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Rousseau is a native of Troy, N. Y. thirty-five years old, and a graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in 1891. He entered the navy after a competitive examination September 20, 1898. For three years he was engineer in charge of draft-ing and designing in the Bureau of Yards and Docks, during which period he had experience on the large dry docks that have been under construction in the past decade. Since 1903 he has been sta Toned at Mare Island, where he has had charge of the jetty work that has been employed to preserve and improve the Mare Island Strait. Under the recent law requiring that the Bureau of Yards and Docks should hereafter be administered by some member of the civil en-gineer's staff of the navy gave the Pres dent opportunity to single Mr. Rousseau ut for the distinction which has led o to the most important position he ha thus far in his life had. The step from a year, to that of rear admiral and member of the Canal Commission, with $7,500 a year, is one that would be impossible in the navy for any other than a ember of the Engineer Corps.
